CHRISTMAS – A TIME FOR FORGIVENESS, TRUST AND LOVE

By Robin Leigh Morgan

I'd won a signed copy this book as part of a giveaway offered by Patty Blount and as I always do when I receive such a book I give my honest opinion for it. In this case it's the novella she'd written for this anthology.

I found the other three novellas written by other authors to be quite endearing, with each one telling a tale which only could have taken place in one of the best cities for the Christmas holidays, New York. Memories of a love from years ago, trust, forgiveness, a rekindled affair are all elements which went into these three stories. There's an entire spectrum of emotions in these pages, emotions which pull you in as you can almost sense what the characters are going through.

As for the novella written by Ms. Blount there is a definite kismet which has taken place between the two main characters, Elena Larsen and Lucas Adair. Their paths had cross several years before at the yearly remembrance which is held for families of those that had perish on 9/11. Both share the loss of their mothers and all the memories which go along with it. While Lucas has gotten over the grief for the most part with all the volunteering he's done, Elena still carries it with her and hasn't allowed herself to trust others even the one she's close to and loves. These two almost share a past surrounding a crystal snowflake. With Christmas being the season of love and hope, can these two individuals connect with each other and start a relationship.

I truly loved what each of these four stories which is why I'm giving Ms. Blount and the other three authors 5 STARS for the endeavors they've written here.

Must reads this holiday season!

This Christmas by Jeannie Moon

Yesterday I sat down to start this book and never stopped until I had finished! I'm a huge fan of the Second Chance at Love trope and Jeannie delivers on all points with this book. She tugs at your heart as you learn the story of Jake and Bree. You want to keep reading, hoping that yes these two can work through the obstacles in front of them. There's never a doubt that they still love each other, you feel that from the start. Then there is sweet Charlie aka Charlotte. Most of all you are rooting for Charlie! I love holiday romances and this was a great way to start The New York Holiday series!

A Light in the Window by Jolyse Barnett

Jade and Ben, once the closest of friends. Growing up together they shared all their secrets. Then one day that changes. Years later Jade returns home during the holidays. Ben knows what he wants but will Jade fight the attraction because of a hurtful mistake at 14. . Heartwarming story of a second chance at love. Great Holiday read!

All I Want for Christmas by Jennifer Gracen

I loved this book! Years before Cassandra and Sean were in love. Sean thinking he knows what best and because he loves Cassie so much decides to break it off. Years later with out knowing Cassie enters a bar that Sean owns. They see each other but does love get rekindled. The angst was there the sensuality was Hot. Must read for the holidays!

Goodness and Light by Patty Blount

This book can be read as a stand alone book. But I urge you all to read the 4 books of the "Christmas in New York" Series Starting with Jeannie Moon's "This Christmas" and finishing with Patty Blount's "Goodness and Light" As I said I have read the other three (3) books in this series, this book really touched me. It took hold of my heart and held it to the very last word! Luke and Elena, two people sharing the the same memories and devastation of September 11 2001. Two very young people a chance encounter years earlier at a Yearly Remembrance Event. Little do they know that many years later that event will play such important part in their lives. Trust, Forgiveness and Love all emotions dealt with but not in the way we as readers think will happen when we read a "Romance Novel". A perfect book for the holiday season! This book is one I know I will read over and over again. Just a little request for the author, Kara needs her story. I feel another Holiday romance coming on next year :)

Highly recommended!

This anthology contains four of the best Christmas stories I have read this year. You'll laugh, you'll cry, and above all, you'll be delighted and happily entertained. Listed below are my reviews of the Kindle versions of the stories.

A decade ago, Jake Killen, the love of Sabrina Gervais' life, left her for another woman. Shortly thereafter, Sabrina discovered she was pregnant, but decided never to let him know. Now, work has brought Jake back to New York. When he encounters Sabrina and her nine-year-old daughter, Charlotte, he instantly realizes that he is the girl's father. Now, he not only wants to be a part of Charlotte's life, but a part of Sabrina's as well. But Jake took Sabrina's heart with him when he left the first time and she can't risk losing anything more. This Christmas by Jeannie Moon is one of four independent but interrelated novellas in Tule Publishing's Christmas In New York series. It is a nice, little story in which love prevails and wishes come true. Reading it put a smile on my face. The story does contain a couple of spicy scenes.

Cassandra Baines and her friend are out for a night on the town in New York City. Being that it is a cold night, they decide to duck into the first place that looks decent. Little do they know, they've just walked into the one bar that is co-owned by Cassandra's ex-fiance, Sean McKinnon. Cassandra last saw Sean seven years ago when he left her for reasons he never fully disclosed. Now, he wants her back and he will do whatever it takes. All I Want For Christmas by Jennifer Gracen is one of four independent but interrelated novellas in the Christmas In New York series. With his lilting Irish brogue and his sparkling deep blue eyes, I couldn't help but fall in love with Sean myself. Delightfully enjoyable and pleasantly tame, this is the first work I've read of Ms. Gracen's, but it certainly won't be the last. A must read for me!

Having just quit her job and her relationship, Jade Engel is moving back home to New York to map out a new future. When a snowstorm forces her to stop along the way, she chances upon Benji Stephens, a boy from her past. No longer the young boy she publicly humiliated in eighth grade, Benji is now a fully grown, fiercely handsome man. Figuring she can't fully move forward until fixing her past, she apologizes. But when her simple apology reignites old feelings, Jade's future becomes more uncertain than ever. A Light In the Window by Jolyse Barnett is one of four independent but interconnected novellas in the Christmas In New York series. Slightly spicy, this former friends to lovers story makes for a very fun, Christmas-themed read.

For the first time since losing her mother in the attack on the World Trade Center, Elena Larsen has returned to New York City. Upon arriving, she encounters Lucas Adair, who also lost his mother on that fateful day. As far as Elena knows, she has never met Lucas before; yet, there is something remarkably familiar about him. As Lucas and Elena continue to randomly come into contact with one other, it is up to them to decide if it is mere coincidence or fate. Goodness And Light by Patty Blount is an absolutely wonderful new novella in the Christmas In New York series. There is nothing gloomy about this inspirational story of destiny and finding the silver lining in loss. With its beautiful sentiment of love and hope, it is the perfect holiday read. Aptly titled, it is filled all of the goodness and light of the holiday season. I highly recommend it!
