Warning: The 1-Star Reviews Are For A Different Book

By Julie & Phil

Just wanted to mention that the 1-star reviews are for a different book with the same title. The book they are referring to is written by Michael Pearl, and I wholeheartedly agree with their reviews on that book. It's awful and abusive.

It is unfortunate that Daniel Switzer's book, (the one pictured above) is titled the same, because this book is quite lovely. In this book, Mr. Switzer discusses The Golden Rule as applied to parenting, praying over our children, blessing them, avoiding shaming our children, using authority versus being authoritarian, etc. There are wonderful chapters about how to teach our children truths about Yeshua (Jesus) using the Biblical Feasts as 'object lessons'.

The tone of this book is actually very sweet and loving, with an air of understanding just how great a blessing our children are and how great our responsibility is in raising them.

This is a book I go back to when I'm weary and need a renewal of the long term vision of parenting.

Biblical view of training a child

By R. Stanley

This teaches parents how to set healthy boundaries for the healthy development of the child. This emphasizes the importance of disciplining your child without anger. Switzer stresses the importance of loving your child in God's Word and correcting your child without anger but calmly when your child demonstrates negative behaviors. He also instructs parents how to teach gratitude and respect for older people in the book and much more. Very balanced book on raising healthy, successful children.

Negative reviews come from people with misunderstanding on loving children God's way. They might not even like God but that's on them. But they don't understand and so have animosity against things that they don't know or understand.

BEWARE THIS BOOK IS EVIL,

By Maria Paiz

I created this page while I was pregnant, before I was a parent. I read this book as I was pregnant and thought this was normal and OK. But it's not. I thought this was a good book because I was raised in an unknowingly abusive home. It is wrong and abusive to hit your child. God did say spare the rod and spoil the child.. but when Jesus came he told us if an enemy slap one cheek to show them the other. Jesus taught love, kindness, patients, and tolerance. This book undermines Jesus and undermines the love parents should have for their children. Violence teaches violence. Hitting, intimidating, and parenting with the idea that you as a human being are more important than your child as a human being is NOT okay. Please, for the sake of your children, stop hitting them and parenting with intimidation.
