In the 1980s the Bureaucracy eliminated all knowledge of the past in the wake of a nuclear holocaust. In 2030 André Gervais discovers two metal boxes containing manuscripts, diaries, and other personal papers that have somehow survived and asks an old man, John Wellfleet, to use these documents to discover the past. In doing so, Wellfleet learns the truth about two relatives: his older cousin Timothy Wellfleet, a Montreal TV journalist at the time of the 1970 War Measures Act, and his stepfather, Conrad Dehmel, a German scholar struggling to keep his Jewish fiancée and himself safe from Hitler's Gestapo. Hugh MacLennan skillfully juxtaposes the insanity of life in Nazi Germany, the political climate of Montreal in the 1960s, and the perspective of an old man looking back on the conditions that led to world destruction as the background to an unforgettable love story.

Thumbs up for MacLennan

By MBS

MacLennan is a great story-teller. he has captured three different eras and cultures, and has a fine ear for dialogue. I will be looking for more of his work.

What a book

By A Customer

The book was actually one of Hugh MacLennan's best. The beginning is just amazing that I just couldn't put the book down. There were many climax in the book and there wasn't really one that I can point out that was outstanding. The end was even more amazing. So go buy and read it and enjoy.
